Teaching Education is an interdisciplinary forum for innovative practices and research in teacher education. The journal's editorial focus is on the challenges and possibilities of rapid social and cultural change for teacher education and, more broadly, for the transformation of education. These challenges include: the impact of new cultures and globalisation on curriculum and pedagogy; new collaborations and partnerships between universities, schools and other social service agencies; the consequences of new community and family configurations for teachers' work; generational and cultural change in schools and teacher education institutions; new technologies and education; and the impact of higher education policy and funding on teacher education.

Submission of manuscripts from educational researchers, teacher educators and practising teachers is encouraged. Contributions are invited which address social and cultural, practical and theoretical aspects of teacher education in university, college and school-based contexts.

All manuscripts for submission should be addressed to:

Editorial Administrator, Graduate School of Education, University of Queensland,
